

Patricia R. Washington

Patricia Washington is Vice President of Grants & Development at the Greater Philadelphia Tourism Marketing Corporation (GPTMC). Patricia directs GPTMC's grantmaking program, and serves as GPTMC's point person for cultural & heritage tourism and diversity marketing. Patricia founded and directs the Neighborhood Tourism Network, a collaborative project aimed at promoting the cultural vitality and diversity of Philadelphia's neighborhoods, and enhancing the participation of neighborhood-based organizations in the tourism industry. She also directs Think Outside, a new marketing initiative aimed at promoting Greater Philadelphia's natural assets and outdoor recreational opportunities. Before joining GPTMC, Patricia was a program officer at the William Penn Foundation, where she developed citywide initiatives focused on community arts and youth development. She has also worked at the Painted Bride Art Center, an interdisciplinary arts presenting organization as program and development director. Patricia is a lawyer and a former assistant city solicitor in the City Law Department. She holds BFA and JD degrees from Howard University.